

Are Public Schools Undermining Our Kids' Faith?

Tuesday, 01 September 2009

Discover what your children are actually learning

Few Evangelical high school students are able to defend their faith. By college, huge numbers drop away from their faith. Why? Because these kids spend years being indoctrinated by liberal teachers—and not taught apologetics and sound doctrine.

Here are two short videos that address this problem:

“The Call to Dunkirk” closely looks at this issue and advocates pulling kids out of public schools.

“The Children of Caesar” concisely outlines the problem of public schools and what Christians should do.

What do you think? Should Christian parents take kids out of government schools? Is it irresponsible and dangerous to have kids in public schools? Email your thoughts to craig@electionforum.org.
