

9th Circuit Court of Appeals: Anti-Christian ruling

Christian groups can't require Christian beliefs

The ultra-liberal 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled against a Christian high school club.

The club invited all to its meetings but required members to be Christians.

These membership requirements were similar to other groups. The Gay-Straight Alliance was approved, and it required members to agree to their objectives. The "Earth Corps" required members to believe in environmental issues.

But the court ruled that the club could not discriminate in membership.
